

Help and Support for Victims of Domestic Violence and Other Forms of Violence Against Women

Are you or someone you know being threatened or abused by a partner or ex partner?

Domestic violence is common and can happen to anyone, in fact 1 in 4 women will experience domestic violence at some stage in their lives.

The phrase 'domestic violence' makes most people think of physical abuse. Domestic violence can involve behaviour such as slapping, beating and kicking which can at its worst lead to permanent injury. But there are also other ways you can be abused These can be sexual, emotional and mental. The abuse may be by your husband or partner but could also be from other family members such as your father, uncle son or by female relatives. Remember, no one has the right to hurt or abuse you. Domestic violence is wrong and is treated seriously in this borough.

Other forms of violence against women will not be tolerated. Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) and forced marriage are both illegal and there are people who can help and advise you if you or anyone you know is at risk.

This leaflet gives you information about who you can contact for advice and practical help. Advice is often available in other languages through interpreting services.

Safety Planning Checklist

Be ready to call 999 if you or your children are in danger.

Keep some money and a set of keys in a safe place.

Find out about your legal and housing rights, e.g. talk to a solicitor.

Keep copies of important papers (passports, birth certificates) safe so you can take them with you should you decide to leave.

Carry a list of emergency numbers with you e.g. police, friends etc

Tell someone you trust about the abuse.

Report any injuries to your GP so there is a record of the abuse.

Think about escape routes so you and your children can get away safely in an emergency.

Pack an emergency bag. Include clothing, medication, money, keys, important documents etc
